In the winter of 1971, an Indian Army intelligence officer heads on a mission to interpret enemy war tactics and other adventures against his country. He is equipped with sheer intelligence and nothing else. In the process, he must also find his lost family.

Does he succeed? Will he overcome the peril of being in other land and fight it out? Will he overcome the political and religious turmoil that he faces while carrying on the mission? Can he get the required information that would help his country in proving their enemy wrong?

This is the story of a patriotic soldier who took up the challenge against backdrop of a war, went through the poignant circumstances of his life and fought it out to reach his family.
